Nutrition Programs

Congregate Meals

Provide inexpensive, balanced noon meals in communal settings which are accessible to most people for whom they are intended. Congregate meals are offered at six locations: Bigfork on Monday, Wednesday and Friday; Lakeside “Gathering Place” on Tuesday and Thursday; and Columbia Falls, Whitefish, plus two locations in Kalispell, on Monday thru Friday. Please call for reservations:

In-Home Caregivers/Workers

At some point it becomes clear that certain routines of daily living are no longer being accomplished, or at least are done only with great difficulty.

The activities of daily living are: eating, dressing, bathing, toileting and transferring (getting in/out of a bed or chair).

Help with these daily activities would require someone who does “personal care”.

Homemaker services provide a wide variety of assistance with such things as meal preparation, grocery shopping and light housekeeping.

Something to remember: Only a nurse can administer medications! Someone hired to work doing personal care can give med cues to a person and remind them to take their meds, but they cannot hand them the meds or handle them in any way.

Background Checks

Members of the general public can now run criminal background checks online (<https://app.mt.gov/choprs/>). An individual online background check costs $11.50. To search, users enter an individual's complete name and date of birth. Social Security numbers aren't required but they help distinguish between people with similar names and birth dates. Montana law requires the person conducting the search to enter his or her name.

People can also request an individual's criminal history by mail for a $10 processing fee. They must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

HOME HEALTH

What's home health care?

Home health care is a wide range of health care services that can be given in your home for an illness or injury.

Examples of skilled home health services include:

- Skilled nursing care
- Speech, physical and occupational therapy
- Wound care for pressure sores or a surgical wound
- Patient and caregiver education
- Intravenous or nutrition therapy
- Injections
- Monitoring serious illness and unstable health status

The goal of home health care is to treat an illness or injury. Home health care helps you get better, regain your independence, and become as self-sufficient as possible.

What should I expect from my home health care?

- Doctor's orders are needed to start care. (If your doctor prescribes Home Health, Medicare will pay for the services.) Once your doctor refers you for home health services, the home health agency will schedule an appointment and come to your home to talk to you about your needs and ask you some questions about your health.
- The home health agency staff will also talk to your doctor about your care and keep your doctor updated about your progress.
- It's important that home health staff see you as often as the doctor ordered.

Two Home Health agencies to choose from:

Flathead CHOICE Home Health

DAY CARE / RESPITE

Day Care Programs usually provide oversight of medication as well as social and recreational programs. The people who benefit most from day care activities are those who live alone, or whose family and friends work during the day. Day care programs usually operate five days a week, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The medical help available is usually limited to administering medicines or minor medical treatment supervised by a registered nurse. Occasionally, speech or hearing therapy, physical therapy, or occupational therapy is available, but participants are expected to be mobile. Medicaid is probably the major source of payment for most people, and must approve each person's eligibility.

Respite Care offers support so family or other caregivers can take a break from the demands of continual home care. When someone cares for a person in their home, they may need temporary replacement support when they are unable to provide the care that is needed, such as during a vacation, an emergency, or working hours. Respite may range from short term care provided for a few hours to an extended number of days or weeks. It may include nursing care, chore services and meals depending on the provider.

ADULT FOSTER CARE HOMES

If a senior feels very comfortable in a family home type environment with the same care provider day-in, day-out, then, this may be the ideal placement. They can enjoy a meal at the dining room table with 3 other like-minded residents or visit with others in the family living room; yet watch TV in the privacy of their own bedroom. These homes are only licensed for up to 4 residents, but may only be set up for 1 or 2.

Assisted Living Homes

Assisted living homes are distinguished from other facilities such as retirement homes by one major characteristic – the residents of assisted living homes are in need of some degree of protective oversight because of disability, age and/or a higher level of dependency of the residents. Protective oversight means that the resident needs supervision in such areas as nutrition, medications, bathing, grooming, feeding, etc. Residents may have varying degrees of mental impairment that prohibits them from recognizing and/or responding to emergency situations, or result in difficulty in basic orientation to time, place, people, etc. Assisted living homes provide 24-hour supervision of residents.

Residents of assisted living homes differ from residents in nursing homes in that they cannot have disabilities or medical conditions that require chronic or convalescent care, since assisted living homes cannot provide nursing care directly to the residents.

OMBUDSMAN PROGRAM

Ombudsmen are advocates for residents in nursing homes and assisted living facilities. They problem solve concerns or issues and empower residents to speak for themselves. If that is not possible, for whatever reason, the ombudsman will speak for the resident.

Ombudsmen visit facilities on a regular basis to meet with residents, families and attend resident councils.

They provide information about nursing home care as well as other topics such as Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security. They are trained to investigate complaints about health, safety and welfare of residents and assist them in exercising their rights.

The resident is the primary focus of the program. All actions must be for the good of the resident.
