Getting Involved in Local Government in the Flathead County

This guide was designed to help you get involved in State, County, City and Town decisions that affect residents in the Flathead County, Montana area.

Image courtesy of Google Earth
Flathead County has a population just over 93,000 as of the 2013 census and has an area of 13,613 km², making it the fourth-most populous county in Montana. Flathead County borders Canada to the north and Lake County to the south, encompassing the upper portion of Flathead Lake. The county seat and commercial hub for the area is the City of Kalispell, with a population around 21,000. The popular resort towns of Whitefish, Bigfork and Lakeside as well as Columbia Falls, the gateway to Glacier National Park, are located in the County. It is also home to many other small town residents and boasts many lakes, National and State Parks, and wilderness areas.

Engagement in Local Government Decision Making
As a Flathead County resident, decisions are being made at every level of government that can affect your family and your community. As a democracy, the government has been set up to allow the citizenry to engage with decision makers whenever possible, so as to reflect the values and needs of the people that the government was set up to serve. Engagement at a basic level can take the form of voting for elected representatives that will best represent our views. While important, voting is not the only way to have an affect on the policies and laws that shape your civic life. This guide was designed to provide ideas and contacts from a governmental perspective on how you can become engaged in the issues that you care about on a State, County, and City or Town level. There are many other ways to become engaged that are not included in this guide, such as involvement in clubs, organizations, grassroots movements, and local non-profits.
Determining Jurisdiction

Trying to determine who has jurisdiction over a particular matter or policy is not always simple and clear. For example, some roads in a city are the responsibility of the city, while other roads are in control of the state. Some towns have established their own governments and policies while others leave some or all of the decisions to the County. While the entire County is governed by Montana State policy, sometimes local policy can be more restrictive than that of the state.

When trying to determine who has jurisdiction over a matter, you may find assistance within the specific sections of this guide. If not, start with whatever agency or level makes sense and simply ask. If you have patience and understand you may be directed elsewhere, you will likely soon learn who your questions and comments should be directed towards. You may feel like someone is ‘passing the buck’, but you will want to talk directly to the right person. The community members that work or volunteer for these agencies will appreciate your patience.
Engagement with the State Legislature

The State laws and policies are largely determined by the Montana Legislature, which is made up of a 100-member House of Representatives and a 50-member Senate. Legislators are elected from geographical locations within the state and only convenes on odd-numbered years, for a period of 90 days from January through April.

The laws created by the State legislature are available to the public online through a searchable database called the Montana Code Annotated (MCA). During the legislative session, legislators and legislative committees bring forward drafts of bills (laws) that they would like to sponsor through the legislative process. Once a law is passed and is signed by the Governor, it becomes part of the MCA.

Ideas to become engaged in the state legislative process:

- Become involved in the election process. Become a candidate or learn about the candidates and vote!
  The Secretary of State has information on candidates, registering to vote, ballot measures, and more at http://sos.mt.gov/elections/.

- Get to know your local state representatives and share your views and concerns with them.
  You can find your representatives by address, name or district and contact information on the Legislator page at http://leg.mt.gov

- Follow the draft bills that you care about as they go through the legislative process, and submit public comment to your local representatives and to committee members reviewing the bills. Find and track bills by subject matter, keywords, bill #s, sponsors and status on the bills page at http://leg.mt.gov. You can also watch live meetings online, view past meetings, and testify at hearings in Helena.
Engagement with State Agencies

The daily administration of the State’s laws are carried out by the executive level of government. At the helm of the executive branch is the Governor and Lieutenant Governor. There are 14 executive branch agencies in the State of Montana. If you are not sure which agency to reach out to, you can browse by service category. Within those agencies there are many commissions, councils, boards and offices. Every agency is tasked with providing ways to engage the public in meaningful ways. These days, state agencies tend to have robust websites with information pertaining to current matters under consideration. You may be surprised by how many of the State Agencies are now engaging through social media! Some also have ways for you to receive automatic email notifications when they are soliciting feedback from the public on a project. Learn more about State resources, including online forms, a large variety of public information, and ways that you can get involved in the administrative decisions of the State of Montana, at the mt.gov website. Not sure where to start? Try using live chat online to reach a Capitol Operator.

Tip: Many agencies have local offices. Don’t be afraid to reach out.

Just a few of the agencies relevant to Flathead residents:

Montana Department of Transportation (MDT)
The MDT website is frequently updated with ways to attend meetings and events and give feedback into the projects it is planning on undertaking. MDT is also open to hearing from you about specific roads and highways that you have concerns about.

---

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks
This agency has oversight over some of the outdoor resources that Flathead Valley residents cherish. Get involved.

---

Montana Department of Natural Resources & Conservation
Weigh in on issues dealing with forestry, water rights, and other conservation matters. Get involved.
Engagement with Flathead County

The Board of County Commissioners is the County's governing body, which consists of three commissioners elected at-large to six-year staggered terms. The County Commission is the executive as well as the legislative branch for Flathead County. The board is charged with setting policy to guide County programs that serve residents and businesses in Flathead County. In addition to the Commissioners, the County has eight other elected officials representing various branches of government.

The Flathead County Commissioners hold public meetings in their chambers, located on the third floor of the County Courthouse at 800 South Main Street in Kalispell. Meeting dates and times change weekly, so check the agenda regularly. Commissioner of District 1, Philip Mitchell, can be reached at pmitchell@flathead.mt.gov. Commissioner of District 2, Pamela Holmquist, can be reached at phholmquist@flathead.mt.gov, and Commissioner of District 3, Randy Brodehl, can be reached at rbrodehl@flathead.mt.gov. They can be contacted by phone at (406) 758-5503. You can also contact County Administrator Mike Pence at 758-5505 or mpence@flathead.mt.gov.

One of the ways to engage on a County level is to apply to be appointed to one of the many County boards that serve in a legislative or advisory capacity to the County Commission. Information on county board meetings and other events is available on the Calendar of Events.

If you have a concern about a County issue, you can also contact the individual department that administers that function of government. For example, contact the Planning & Zoning Department with concerns or questions about the zoning in your area, the rules a county subdivision must follow, or floodplain information. Question about your County road? Contact the Road and Bridge Department.
The City of Kalispell welcomes participation and strives to keep citizens informed. Kalispell residents can become members of volunteer advisory boards, volunteer for City events, and provide feedback to the Mayor, Council and staff on current issues or concerns. Keep informed through the Notify Me portal on the City website. The City also solicits feedback and provides information on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and Linkedin, and has a YouTube channel.

The Kalispell City Council holds a regular public meeting the first and third Monday of every month and a public work session the second and fourth Monday at 7 p.m. at City Hall, 201 First Avenue East. Upcoming agendas and materials are released the Thursday prior to the meeting. The public will have an opportunity to speak or can e-mail the full council at citycouncil@kalispell.com. Regular Council meetings are also streamed live on the city website, under Meetings on Demand and aired live on Charter Cable Channel 190. Find dates and times for all board meetings on the city calendar.

If you have a concern about a City issue, you can also contact the department that administers that function of government or the City Manager, Doug Russell. Many city documents are public records and available on the website under Archives. Contact Aimee Brunckhorst, in the City Clerk’s office for more information at (406) 758-7756 or cityclerk@kalispell.com.
Engagement with the City of Whitefish

The City of Whitefish, with a population of about 7,000 people, has a six-person City Council, a Mayor and an appointed City Manager. Public City Council meetings are held the first and third Mondays of the month at 7:10 p.m. with work sessions generally beginning at 5:30 p.m. The meeting agenda is available on the City website the Wednesday prior to the meeting. You can contact individual Council Members directly, or send public comment to the entire council via Michelle Howke, the City Clerk. City Council meetings can be streamed live, or watch later. Signing up for automatic email notifications helps to keep track of upcoming issues under discussion.

Volunteering for Committee Boards is a great way to become involved in government decision making. Most cities, counties and state agencies have citizen boards. Whitefish Boards & Committees help the Council with a variety of city decisions.

The City of Whitefish’s website has a wide variety of information and resources including, current projects, news and notices, and detailed contact information for each City department and division.
Engagement with the City of Columbia Falls

The City of Columbia Falls lies just 17 miles from the west entrance to Glacier National Park. Additionally, the City is the gateway to the scenic corridor, traveling north on Nucleus Avenue and continuing on the North Fork Road through the Flathead National Forest to the Camas entrance of Glacier National Park. The City of Columbia Falls has a population of about 5,000 people, has an elected six-person Council and Mayor and an appointed City Manager. The City Manager is responsible for the day-to-day business and activities of the City and is readily available to assist the public. The Council members can be contacted through the City Clerk, Barb Staaland at staalandb@cityofcolumbiafalls.com or (406) 892-4388. The City’s website (www.cityofcolumbiafall.org) contains contact information as well as a contact us page with an email form to send complaints, suggestions and questions. The website contains the City Council and Planning Board agendas and minutes. The Columbia Falls Municipal Code and adopted Ordinances and Resolutions are also available on the website. Check the website for information by department and city service.

City Council meetings are held the first and third Mondays of each month at 7:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall, 130 6th Street West.
Engagement with the town of Bigfork

The town of Bigfork, located at the north end of Flathead Lake and bordered on the western edge by the Flathead River, is also an unincorporated community and, therefore, governed by Flathead County. Bigfork has a population of about 4300 with an economy that relies heavily on tourism. Though Bigfork is governed by the County, there are several active grass-roots groups that work to address Bigfork’s needs and they have a very active Chamber of Commerce. The town also has a Bigfork Parks Advisory Committee with volunteers appointed by the County Commission.

Engagement with Somers and Lakeside

Somers and Lakeside act as sister communities sharing the same Chamber of Commerce, Fire Service and School District. They are both located on the western shore of the north end of Flathead Lake with Somers nine miles from Kalispell, and Lakeside eight miles farther south. The southern end of Lakeside borders Lake County. Somers has a population around 1,200 and Lakeside is around 2,700. They are both unincorporated so Flathead County is the governing body. There is a Lakeside Parks Advisory Committee through the County, and Lakeside and Somers have their own Special Water and Sewer Districts and Fire District. The Lakeside-Somers Chamber of Commerce website has information about the area and would be aware of local citizens groups that are involved in the community.
Engagement with Evergreen

Evergreen is an unincorporated community of nine square miles located on the northeast side of Kalispell and bordered to the east by the Flathead River. Evergreen has a population around 8,000 and is under the jurisdiction of Flathead County. Evergreen has its own Special Water and Sewer Districts and its own Fire District. Many addresses that list Kalispell as the city are actually located in Evergreen, confusing many people in the area who may not realize they are not Kalispell residents. Evergreen residents should contact Flathead County with questions or concerns. The County also has jurisdiction over most of the roads and streets in Evergreen with the exception of State Highways, such as Hwy 2, which is under the jurisdiction of the Montana Department of Transportation.

The Evergreen Chamber of Commerce would be a good place to contact to learn more about involvement in the community of Evergreen.

Overlooking Kalispell with Whitefish Mountain in the background

Photo by Bret Bouda
Frequently Asked Questions

Who would I contact regarding a Public Safety Issue?
In an emergency, call 911. The Flathead County Justice Center, located in Kalispell, houses the Flathead County Sheriff’s Office, which has jurisdiction over 5,200 square miles. This is also the location of the County Jail and Justice Court, Kalispell, Whitefish, and Columbia Falls also have their own Police Departments.

Who is in charge of the schools in Flathead County?
There are 23 independent school districts in the county, with a Superintendent of Schools overseeing general supervision of all the public schools. Each district, and each school within the district has ways to get involved. Check with the individual school or district.

What about the libraries in Flathead County?
The Kalispell, Columbia Falls and BigFork ImagineIF Libraries are governed by a volunteer Board of Trustees which meets monthly. The Whitefish Community Library also has a governing Board of Trustees. The all volunteer, non-profit West Shore Community Library serves Somers, Lakeside, Rollins & Dayton.

What about citizens’ groups, clubs, non-profits, and other grass-roots organizations that advocate for communities?
There are many such groups in the Flathead area. Some groups will follow local government issues and report back to their membership on issues they feel are important. An internet search on the particular topic area you are interested in should provide leads.

“The government is us; we are the government, you and I.” — Theodore Roosevelt

To report a needed update, please call or text Aimee Brunckhorst, Leadership Flathead Class of 2016, at (406) 223-1187.
Version 6, Published March, 2019